OTTAWA, ONTARIO – October 12, 2021 – The Canadian Public Works Association (CPWA) is pleased to announce the winners of CPWA's 2021 National Public Works Week Awards Contest. The CPWA National Public Works Week Awards Contest recognizes public works agencies throughout Canada for their public education and outreach activities during National Public Works Week.

"After more than a year of going to great lengths to keep our communities functioning, the effort these municipalities put into their public works celebrations is inspiring," said CPWA President Rylan Wadsworth. "From student art contests and proclamations to educational videos and social media campaigns, the winning municipalities were incredibly creative in educating their communities about what they do and about the importance of public works. Congratulations to each of the winners and to all the communities that participated in a successful National Public Works Week."

National Public Works Week has been celebrated every May since 1960 to recognize the tens of thousands of men and women in North America who provide and maintain the infrastructure and services collectively known as public works. Each year, municipalities throughout the U.S. and Canada celebrate NPWW with open houses, project and facility tours, parades, education, media events, school visits, and career events. Municipalities also use the week to recognize their staff – the public works professionals who plan, design, build, manage and maintain our communities' infrastructure and who play such an important role in our quality of life.

This year, National Public Works Week was celebrated May 16-22, 2021. Winning municipalities were those that best met the awards contest criteria for creativity, public outreach, education, political involvement, and staff involvement. The award submissions reflected the 2021 National Public Works Week theme "Stronger Together," celebrating the role public works plays in creating a great place to live.
